

EF WITH HER FIRST LOVE.

MISS HARWOOD RUNS AWAY FROM MR. PRUYN WITH MR. HEMINWAY.

The Engagement at Mt. Desert of a Young Albany Knickerbocker and a Rector's Daughter—Her Abrupt Good-by to Him.

NEW HAVEN Sept. 30.—Miss Honora Har-

Harwood, rector of Trinity Church of this city, created a sensation in her family and among her acquaintances here to-day by the announcement by letter of her marriage to Mr. Truman Hominyaw, a broker of New York. The sonation was greater and the news more startling on account of the young lady's engagement to another gentleman, a son of the late John V. L. Pruyn of Albany, and grandson of the late General William C. Pruyn, who had been expected for the projected marriage was Oct. 7. She was married to Mr. Hominyaw on Tuesday, in Jersey City, by the Rev. Frederick E. Mortimer of St. Mark's Church, and the newly-married pair sailed this morning for Europe in the steamship Werra.

The story of Miss Harwood's love making is romantic. She is very pretty, has light, wavy hair, a fresh complexion, and large, fine eyes. She is a good talker, and an excellent musician, and the assembly of her admirers in the city and society was eagerly sought. Her father is rector of one of the wealthiest churches in this State, and has many parishioners.

The Harwood family spent the summer of 1890 at Long Beach, Cal., where Harwood and her sister Alida, also a beauty, were below at the Maine resort. Mr. Truman Hominyaw was then in California, and he and his wife's sister's charms, and became rival suitors for her hand. Mr. Pruyn is very wealthy, and because of his daughter's preference for him, his life was comparatively poor. The latter was Miss Harwood's choice, and upon him she bestowed her affections. He was at first somewhat surprised, but after some time he approved a match with Mr. Pruyn, and he attended to their wishes. The engagement was now announced, and the wedding took place, and Truman Hominyaw was forgotten.

The Harwoods returned to New Haven in the fall. The marriage was much talked of for the ensuing year, as Miss Harwood made frequent visits to the home of his intended bride, and in October Miss Harwood went to Albany to visit her mother and sister. On Monday, Oct. 6, she addressed

Mr. Frayn's alleged devotion to an Albany lady, who was said to have been married to a young man to this lady, or had offered himself to her, was what was made of the truth of this, there was a great deal of conversation between Mr. Frayn and Miss Harwood.

Miss Harwood returned to this city, her husband failed and she was obliged to return. With her mother and sister Miss Harwood went to England. Minister Phelps, her father's minister, was charged with the duty of looking after their entertainment in London.

Not long after their arrival Mr. Frayn showed up in the city, and a great deal of conversation followed, news of which came to this city.

Miss Harwood spent his last summer's vacation in England. There he was one of the committee on the Grant memorial services in Westminster Abbey, and he was there in the early in September, Mr. Frayn with them.

October was chosen for the wedding. Care was taken to select the best of the city, and there were selected as ushers Mr. Harmon P. Bond, son of Gen. Meredith Bond, ex-Minister to Spain, and Mr. Frank B. Hillhouse of New York. The bride's social position and her husband's high position in the city made the anticipated event, and New Haven society was on tiptoe.

Monday last, Miss Harwood said she was going to New York to arrange final details for her troupeau. She took an afternoon train, and was met by her father, Mr. Frayn, her mother, her sister, her brother, her sister-in-law, and they were married. It is not known whether any correspondence had been going on between the bride and groom, as she was married. Her husband sent the marriage certificate to her father, and the father-in-law was thunderstruck. A letter to a young lady confidentially of her intention to sail this morning on the Werra. Still another letter told Mr. Pratt that the young man had been married to a woman as the wife of his rival at St. Inez.

Dr. Harwood is overcome, and refused to see her. He has been troubled with his children before. His son Charles was drowned about eight years ago. The young man had been at the same time with dissipated college set, many of whom are now prominent in New York City. He had been in the army and had been sent to prison for a number of years. After his release he went to Chicago, whence stories came of his irregularities.

Political Meetings.

Senator Charles A. Fowler of Ulster county helped the Harlem Democratic Club to ratify the Democratic State nominations in the club house in 125th street last night, by making a speech in which he urged the voters to support Judge George C. Barrett, and will support Justice Andrew White for Sheriff.

Senator Charles A. Fowler of Ulster county, who was in the city last night, said that the Twentieth Assembly District received last night, that "the present assembly district service is well utilized, if applied, in the case of the Twentieth Assembly District."

At a meeting of the First Assembly District Anti Civil Rights Association, held last night at the Hotel Hamilton, endorsing Michael Norton for State Senator and Corcoran for Assemblyman.

The Twentieth Ward Independent Democratic Anti-Civil Rights Association, held a meeting last night for the purpose of promoting the election of men opposed to the present party service laws. They endorse the Democratic State ticket.

Wm. H. McANNANY, a young bartender of mild and amiable ways who lives at 327 East Fifty-seventh street, told Commissioner Young yesterday that while talking quiet with three friends at Third avenue and Fifty-fourth street about 24 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 31, Policeman Thomas W. Sullivan, who lives at 100 West 100th street, without provocation, broke his left arm with his club. The young man said he was not in the least afraid of Sullivan, who was a well known character in the neighborhood, and he was not concerned in his story, two of them saying that they were not afraid of Sullivan either.

At the time the three men were engaged in a free fight, and when he interfered to preserve the peace Sullivan, who was armed with a club, suddenly grabbed him. He knocked Briscotti down in a self-defensive manner, and then he turned on Sullivan, striking him one last blow, and, prodding a witness who held his head McANNANY flat, was running away.

McANNANY was taken to a police station, and a warrant was reserved.

Bartley Campbell's "Paquita."

Bartley Campbell's Mexican play, "Paquita," was played last night, for the last time this season, in the Fourteenth Street theatre. Mr. Campbell leased the theatre for four years on Rent 1. "Paquita," he said, was the last play he would produce on that theatre. He struck, but were coaxed into playing that night. Yesterday a compromise was effected. Mrs. E. Belmont, who is the manager of the theatre, and Miss Kate Forsythe, who has been the leading lady, said:

"At our meeting this morning I received my final pay. I am all sorry for Mr. Campbell, but of course it is not our fault. He has been a very good manager. We are going to go on the road after a rest of two or three weeks. Mr. Campbell will act as manager for him."
